Over the past six months, we have continued building a stronger SEO foundation for your website with a focus on long-term visibility, stronger keyword performance, and overall organic growth. During this time, we completed a full re-on-page optimization, making strategic updates across the website to better align your pages with search engine expectations and improve how your content is understood and ranked.

As part of this optimization process, it is normal for some keywords to temporarily shift or fluctuate as Google re-evaluates the updated page structure, keyword placement, and overall relevance. While these short-term changes can happen, the purpose of the work has been to create stronger long-term positioning and open the door for improved rankings, new keyword opportunities, and better search visibility overall.

In addition to the on-page work, we have continued supporting the campaign through off-page SEO efforts, including building 450 quality backlinks in line with Google guidelines. These efforts are designed to strengthen your website's authority, support safer ranking growth, and help improve both search presence and traffic over time. Compared to previous months, we are seeing encouraging progress, and the work completed so far has helped create a more stable base for continued improvement.

Overall, this six-month period has been focused on strengthening the core of your SEO so future growth has something solid to build on. SEO is a long-term strategy, and the progress made so far is part of building momentum that can continue to grow with consistency.

Moving forward, the next step is to begin adding blog content to support the SEO work already completed. This will help expand your keyword reach, create more ranking opportunities, strengthen topic relevance within your practice areas, and give search engines more fresh content to crawl. Adding blogs alongside the existing on-page and backlink strategy will help take the campaign to the next level and continue building meaningful long-term results.
